

GALAXY NEXUS HITS VERIZON; GET ONE TODAY FOR $299.99

Written by Deepti Dhaval
Thursday, 15 December 2011 12:28

Finally Verizon has embraced the Galaxy Nexus with 4G LTE, which will be available on Dec. 15 for Verizon, that is today. The device will be available through Verizon beginning at 1 a.m. EST.

With a two-year contract, the phone will sell for $299.99, which by default qualifies for Verizon's double data promotion. This means that if someone buys this device from Verizon and opt for the data plans, they get double usage available in a specific plan. For example, if one opts for a 2GB plan, they get 4GB instead.

Currently, the data plans are priced as 2GB, 5GB, 10GB which costs $30, $50, $80 per month respectively. However, if one wants to make use of the ability, using the Galaxy Nexus LTE connection as a mobile hotspot is an extra $20.

Google and Samsung's latest attempt in this case is Galaxy Nexus, which seems to be the strongest competitor to iPhone 4S and possibly even the rumored iPhone 5. A loyal iPhone user would never want to switch over as of now, even though this Samsung's device is powered with the latest update of Android, that is IceCream Sandwich.

However, for the other interested users, Galaxy Nexus is an almost clean piece, which sports a 4.65-inch display running at 1280 by 720 resolution, with a 5-megapixel camera with 1080p HD video capture and a 1.3-megapixel front-facing camera. It has a 1.2-gigahertz dual core processor and 1 gigabyte of RAM under the hood.

GALAXY NEXUS HITS VERIZON; GET ONE TODAY FOR $299.99

Written by Deepti Dhaval
Thursday, 15 December 2011 12:28

